Subskills

Administrator Perspective
Which English proficiency skills do you think are most important for ITAs to be successful?

ITA Perspective
What would you say is your greatest challenge as an ITA?

- Writing
- Listening
- Reading
- Speaking
Other Challenges
Administrator Perspective

• Discrimination from undergrads

• Awareness of IHE organizational structures and policies

• Relationships with peers, faculty, and advisors

• Instructional practices (teacher-centered)

• Workload

Finding time to prioritize language work.

Limited access to speakers of North American English and opportunities to use it when their lab, their degree program, and their housing arrangements effectively segregate them into communities where their first language is the language of professional, academic, and interpersonal communication.

They work many hours in the lab in addition to studying and teaching. By law it should only be 20 hours a week but some work 40-60.
Other Challenges
ITA Perspective

• Time management/workload
• Low pay
• Professional vocabulary, idioms, cultural references
• Lack of feedback from students

"Prepare [sic] well to the lecture is always taking time and I go beyond the 20 hours per week to help the students."

"Not being paid enough to live comfortably."

"Students may not understand me but they do not tell me."
COVID-19 Related Challenges
Administrator Perspective

• Online teaching

• Assessing ITAs pre-arrival

• Visas, travel, and time differences

• Lack of opportunities for ITAs to speak English

• Transcription functions with accents

• Projecting voices with masks on

I would say teaching online was a big challenge for ITAs and there wasn't much done to support them in that transition/task.

Many students were still in their home countries, in their parents' homes! No opportunities to speak English.

[ITAs] had fewer language immersion experiences than in a normal year, and the social distancing resulted in stagnation or even regression in spoken English proficiency.
COVID-19 Related Challenges
ITA Perspective

• Teaching online

• Communicating with masks on

• Workload

• How to deal with reporting absences, reporting late submissions

“More work for the same the same pay.”

“The transition from the traditional classrooms to virtual teaching.”

“Using mask limits communication in terms of hearing speaker's voice and understanding some words.”
