Dear Representatives Kuster, Upton, Schrier, Burchett, and Rouda,

On behalf of the undersigned organizations, we are writing in support of the Expanding Access to Graduate Education Act of 2019 (H.R. 3334). We applaud your commitment to improving access to, and affordability of, graduate and professional education. This legislation will help ensure that individuals from diverse backgrounds, including those from low-income and underrepresented communities, can pursue a master’s or doctoral degree.

National indicators show that the number of graduate students who received Pell as undergraduates continues to grow.¹ According to most recent data, nearly 46 percent of first-year graduate and professional students were former Pell recipients. However, nearly 35 percent did not fully exhaust all 12 semesters of Pell Grant awards.¹ Under H.R. 3334, graduate students who received Pell as undergraduates would be allowed to continue utilizing the program towards their first postbaccalaureate degree, provided that they have remaining Pell semesters leftover and remain income-eligible. This would offer a significant financial benefit to a segment of students most in need of support.

As the U.S. population continues to diversify, the needs of our communities and the workforce reflect those changing demographics. Additionally, occupations requiring a master’s degree or higher at entry-level are among the fastest growing our economy over the next decade.² H.R. 3334 would modernize the Pell Grant to meet these demands by supporting the pipeline of future professionals.

Furthermore, this legislation upholds the mission of Pell in providing access to economically disadvantaged and historically underserved populations. Enacting it would have several advantages for students, families, and the economy. It could further incentivize timelier completion of an undergraduate degree, while also limiting the reliance on student loans at the graduate level. This is noteworthy considering former Pell recipients in graduate school are more likely to borrow and tend to carry larger amounts of undergraduate debt as compared to non-Pell recipients.¹

¹ Data compiled from the U.S. Department of Education, National Center for Education Statistics, National Postsecondary Student Aid Study (NPSAS).

Again, we thank you for introducing the Expanding Access to Graduate Education Act and applaud your leadership on this critical issue. If you have any questions, please contact CGS’s Vice President of Public Policy and Government Affairs, Lauren Inouye, at Linouye@cgs.nche.edu or (202)-461-3864.

Sincerely,

AccessLex Institute
American Association of Colleges of Nursing
Association of American Veterinary Medical Colleges
Council of Graduate Schools
National Association of Colleges and Employers
National Association of Graduate-Professional Students
National Association of Social Workers
National Education Association
Physician Assistant Education Association