

CGS-JED Advisory Committee on Graduate Student Mental Health and Well-being

Dr. Paul J. Barreira is former Director of Harvard University Health Services and the Henry K. Oliver Professor of Hygiene and Associate Professor of Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Barreira formerly served as the Director of Behavioral Health and Academic Counseling at Harvard University Health Services. Dr. Barreira has a longstanding interest in the development and improvement of systems of care for delivering mental health services, in the public and private sectors and, more recently, in university communities.

Dr. Hollie Chessman is a research fellow for the American Council on Education's Center for Policy Research and Strategy, where she supports special projects, including the Race and Ethnicity in Higher Education report and initiatives related to student mental health and well-being. Chessman has served the higher education profession for nearly 20 years, beginning in student affairs and undergraduate education.

Dr. Jan Collins-Eaglin is a psychologist who specializes in mental health issues in higher education and depression among African American women. She is also a Scientific Advisor to The Steve Fund, an organization dedicated to the mental health and emotional wellbeing of students of color.

Dr. Michael Cunningham is Associate Provost of Graduate and Research and Professor of Psychology at Tulane University. Professor Cunningham's primary research interests include examining adolescent development in diverse contexts with a specific program of research that examines resilience and vulnerability in African American children and adolescents.

Dr. Daniel Eisenberg is S.J. Axelrod Collegiate Professor in Health Management and Policy at the University of Michigan. His broad research goal is to improve understanding of how to invest effectively and efficiently in the mental health of young people. He directs the Health Minds Network, which focuses on mental health and service use in college populations.

Dr. Andrés Gil is Vice President for Research and Economic Development and Dean of the University Graduate School at Florida International University (FIU). As Professor in the Robert Stempel College of Public Health and Social Work, he has served as advisor or reviewer to the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), among other organizations.

Ms. Susanna Harris is a doctoral student in microbiology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is the CEO Founder of PhD Balance, a project which serves to empower students to develop their own resilience as they work toward success in and after their graduate training. The organization also provides resources for those dealing with mental health in higher education.

Dr. Paula D. McClain is Dean of The Graduate School and Vice Provost for Graduate Education at Duke University. She also holds positions as Professor of Political Science and Professor of Public Policy at Duke, and is President-Elect of the American Political Science Association. She is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Science, having been elected in 2014. In Dr. McClain's role as Dean, she serves as PI for Duke's University Center for Exemplary Mentoring (UCEM).

Dr. Suzanne T. Ortega (Ex-Officio member) serves as President of the Council of Graduate Schools (CGS). The only U.S. higher education association devoted solely to graduate education and research, CGS has nearly 500 U.S. and Canadian members and nearly 30 international affiliates. A sociologist by training, Dr. Ortega's research focuses on social inequality, mental health, and graduate education.

Dr. Susan Porter is Dean and Vice-Provost, Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies, at the University of British Columbia (UBC). She also currently serves as the President of the Canadian Association for Graduate Studies, and is a Clinical Professor in Pathology and Laboratory Medicine at UBC.

Dr. Sally (Sarah) Pratt is Vice Provost for Graduate Programs at the University of Southern California (USC) and Chair-Elect of the Council of Graduate Schools Board of Directors. At USC, she is responsible for PhD, master's and graduate certificate programs across the humanities, sciences, and social sciences, as well as seventeen professional schools.

Dr. Nance Roy (Ex Officio member) is Chief Clinical Officer at The Jed Foundation and Assistant Clinical Professor in the Yale School of Medicine's Department of Psychiatry. Her past roles have included Director of the Health and Counseling Center at Sarah Lawrence College, Assistant Dean of Health and Wellness at Sarah Lawrence College, and Associate Dean of Health and Wellness at Rhode Island School of Design.

Dr. Barry Schreier is Director of the University Counseling Service and Professor of Counseling Psychology at The University of Iowa, and is a member of the board of the Association of University and College Counseling Center Directors. He has a strong interest and commitment to working with Gay, Lesbian, Bi and Queer students. He is also a Gender Specialist and has worked for many years supporting students in the Trans* communities.

Dr. Tammi Vacha-Haase is Dean of the Graduate College at Boise State University and President-Elect of the Western Association of Graduate Schools. She holds a PhD in Counseling Psychology. As dean, Dr. Vacha-Haase led the launch of GradWell, a Boise State program that seeks to improve wellness and mental health for graduate students.