Kathryn Glorioso named the 2025 Three Minute Thesis (3MT®) People's Choice Winner

Showcase and roundtable discussion highlighted research of 12 graduate scholars.

Washington, DC – Kathryn Glorioso, a Biomedical Science PhD student at the Medical University of South Carolina, was named the People's Choice Winner of the Three Minute Thesis (3MT®) Showcase and Roundtable at the Council of Graduate Schools' (CGS) 65th Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C.

The session was sponsored by ProQuest™, part of Clarivate™, and highlights the value of 3MT® competitions. The University of Queensland developed the 3MT® concept to help prepare graduate students to communicate the value of their research to a broad audience in three minutes.

Glorioso's presentation titled, Hold on to Your Cast Iron: Cooking up a Better Target for Diabetes Drugs, looked at factors beyond diet and exercise when treating and preventing diabetes to a novel system within insulin-producing beta cells. She developed an intervention that helps those cells function more effectively, paving the way for new medical treatment.

Chevelle Newsome, CGS President, said the 3MT® Showcase not only highlights the innovative research and scholarship of graduate students, but also gives them essential practice in conveying their ideas to wider audiences.

"Kathryn demonstrated not only an exceptional research project, but also the ability to command the stage with a clear and compelling story about their work," Newsome said. "I look forward to seeing what they accomplish on their academic journey. Now more than ever, students must be able to communicate complex, cutting-edge research accurately, concisely, and confidently—an ability that is fundamental not only to academic success, but to thriving in today's dynamic and collaborative workforce."

"Congratulations to Kathryn. The importance of being able to call attention to, distill and clearly, quickly communicate complex ideas, particularly in video format, becomes more important every moment—especially as the amount of information we encounter increases in scope, speed and volume. The 3MT competition has not only endured the test of time and geography, but it's tremendous fun for all of us who get to see these brilliant scholars in action,” said Gilia Smith, Partnerships Director, ProQuest.

The Showcase featured the 12 winners of regional 3MT® competitions in North America: The Canadian Association of Graduate Studies (CAGS,) Consejo Mexicano de Estudios de Posgrado (COMEPO,) the Conference of Southern Graduate Schools (CSGS,) the Midwestern Association of Graduate Schools (MAGS,) the Northeastern Association of Graduate Schools (NAGS,) and the Western Association of Graduate Schools (WAGS).

The regional winners participated in a roundtable discussion, reflecting on their experiences and offering insights that can help graduate schools develop successful 3MT® competitions and other programs designed to hone students’ communication skills.

Michelle Janusz, CAGS Awardee, Université Laval

Parker Volk, CAGS Awardee, University of Calgary
