CONSULTATION

STRENGTHS

CHALLENGES

The Graduate College has demonstrated robust advocacy/relationship-building, fostering a collaborative and positive attitude towards change and process improvement.

Strong partnerships exist between the Graduate College and campus units, e.g., Faculty Senate, UCF Global, and the Office of Research.

Need for increased visibility/strategic positioning of the College within the broader university framework.

Tension between undergrad and graduate priorities.

Policy changes are often poorly communicated, abruptly implemented, and rigidly enforced causing disruption.

SHORT TERM RECOMMENDATIONS

Promote Best Practices: Engage faculty, program directors, and graduate leaders in supporting the graduate mission by fostering a culture of commitment to best practices in graduate education.

Increase Transparency: Provide clear communication channels to ensure stakeholders are informed and involved in decision-making processes.

Network: Create opportunities for program directors and graduate advisory staff to engage in regular meetings and discussions.

LONGER TERM RECOMMENDATIONS

Foster Program Director Leadership: Rebalance the autonomy of graduate programs by decentralizing some decision-making processes allowing program directors greater flexibility.

Strengthen Advocacy and Leadership: Build a service-oriented and visionary Graduate College that advocates for resources and supports the academic community. Shift from a policing role to one of partnership and innovation, ensuring that the College is seen as a valuable ally pursuing academic excellence.

CONGRATULATIONS

You've officially joined the ranks of the UCF Graduate Faculty, as recognized by the College of Graduate Studies. In this role, you now have the opportunity to:

- Teach graduate-level courses
- Serve on graduate program committees
- Guide thesis and dissertation work as a committee advisor or chair
- Mentor graduate students and postdoctoral scholars throughout their academic journeys
- Advance your own research, scholarship, or creative work

At UCF, Pegasus—the white, winged horse of Greek mythology—represents our commitment to limitless possibilities and the pursuit of knowledge. As the university's official logo, it reflects our motto, Reach for the Stars, and our drive to achieve more. As a graduate faculty member, you advance that vision forward. We're here to support your journey with the resources and mentorship you need for success.

A GIFT FROM US TO YOU.

GRADUATE FACULTY

Thank you for the outstanding work you do as part of UCF's graduate community. Your expertise, leadership, and mentorship are integral to our success.

As a member of UCF's graduate faculty, you contribute in countless ways, including:

- Teaching graduate-level courses that challenge and inspire
- Serving on Graduate Council to guide curriculum and policy
- Advising and chairing thesis and dissertation committees
- Mentoring graduate students and postdoctoral scholars through their academic journey
- Advancing original research, scholarship, and creative endeavors

We are grateful for the meaningful impact you have on our students, our university, and the future of graduate education.

To continue following best practices, we have assembled mentoring resources at graduate.ucf.edu/gemini.

Training

Learning New Things

The College of Graduate Studies offers training to assist graduate program directors and their staff. The training sessions review graduate policies and procedures, resources and services, as well as related IT systems (PeopleSoft, Slate, GradInfo, etc.).

Admissions Training

The admissions training is in the Slate Admissions Application. Register here: applynow.graduate.ucf.edu/portal/admissions_training. If you have a scheduling conflict, contact Brandy.Pieper@ucf.edu for alternative options.

Graduate Funding Training

Register here for the Webcourse. Once completed, email gradassistantship@ucf.edu to request access to the Graduate Financial System. The system is used to send graduate assistantship offers and create agreements.

Student Services and Graduation | GRD001

Sign up on Workday for the GRD001 Student Services and Graduation course. Graduate Program Directors can self-enroll in the CGS Resources webcourse. Please email gradservices@ucf.edu if you have questions about training opportunities.

Thesis and Dissertation Process

Faculty and staff can access the free, self-paced webcourse “How to Help Grad Students: Thesis and Dissertation” to better understand the thesis/dissertation process. The course includes a timeline, details on communications, deadlines, reports, forms, defense, and format review. Enroll at: webcourses.ucf.edu/enroll/HKL8BC. For questions contact editor@ucf.edu.

Responsibilities of Program Directors

The following listing of responsibilities is the result of discussions by the UCF Graduate Council and others to identify those activities that will enable our graduate programs to flourish.

Graduate program directors are responsible for coordinating activities within departments in support of graduate programs, graduate students, certificate students, and post-baccalaureate students. They cannot do their jobs without the help and support of the college dean, the college associate dean that is the liaison for graduate affairs, the department chair, the faculty in the department, and the UCF College of Graduate Studies. Outlined in this section are the major responsibilities of the program director.

Supervision and Leadership of Program

- Supervising and coordinating programs, including program administration and guidance to office staff, including chairing the Graduate Committee of the program
- Training office staff, faculty, and their successors to perform functions in support of graduate education
- Communicating with the department chair to plan budgets necessary to perform graduate program activities
- Coordinating work, space, and assignments for graduate students
